In addition to the metrics associated with the strategic plan, the University of Colorado tracks many other metrics with supporting data. Visit cu.edu/strategic-metrics for more information.
Between the summer of 2019 and the spring of 2021, the University of Colorado (CU) conducted a collaborative and inclusive strategic planning process to identify common themes that would help guide the university for the next five years and beyond. Priorities identified were collectively chosen by stakeholders involved throughout the process will advances CU's mission.

The CU system strategic plan is a high level plan that aligns all elements of governance (regents, system and campuses) to achieve a focused set of goals that are essential to fulfilling the university's mission. The system plan does not replicate or replace campus strategic plans, but is achieved through them. CU's strategic plan elevates and makes the case for CU with the state and shines light on its successes and needs.

The strategic planning process was guided by input from the CU Board of Regents, faculty, students, staff, chancellors, trustees and the broader CU community.

The collaborative process resulted in the creation of four strategic pillars:

Affordability & Student Success

Discovery & Impact

Diversity, Inclusion, Equity & Access

Fiscal Strength

Pillars highlight several focus areas, some of which were campus-specific, others were system-wide. Each focus area was addressed by working groups – each working group articulated metrics, goals and action steps that would meet the long-term strategic outcomes.

CU is committed to being a premier, accessible and transformative public university that provides a quality and affordable education with outstanding teaching, learning, research, service and health care. Through collaboration, diversity, innovation, technology and entrepreneurship, CU will expand student success and the economic foundation of the state of Colorado. The strategic plan strengthens the university’s commitment to creating an inclusive culture as it strives for excellence and works to meet the needs of the state, nation and world.
THE PROCESS
How we got here

Throughout the four-phased process that began in the summer of 2019, the strategic planning committee met with approximately 600 stakeholders in over 80 meetings throughout the system and community and involved over 125 students, faculty and staff who participated as working group co-chairs or members. Discussions with the board, governance groups and campuses led to defining the scope of the project, articulating priority areas and developing a guide for the planning process.

To identify approaches to become a national leader, system-wide and campus-based working groups considered the state of promising practices on campuses and in other institutions and organizations. Leveraging the expertise of their members and incorporating outside expertise when necessary, the working groups analyzed initiatives, strategic plans and data sources to identify, improve or create best practices. Additionally, some working groups conducted data and literature reviews to obtain a robust understanding of their specific areas of focus.

System-wide and campus-based working groups were charged with delivering three outputs over the lifespan of the strategic planning process:

• Identifying leading practices and potential barriers, across the system and around the globe
• Identifying recommended metrics for the strategic steering committee’s review (committee comprised of the president and chancellors)
• Recommending five-year goals and three – five action steps that would drive the progression of each goal

During the spring of 2020, CU paused strategic planning efforts to focus on navigating the COVID-19 global pandemic. As the world prepared to emerge post COVID-19, CU also prepared to resume the mission-critical importance of strategic planning. With a better understanding of some of the short and long-term implications of COVID-19, CU worked to complete its strategic plan.

The resulting plan establishes bold goals paired with metrics and in some cases initiatives along with aggressive action steps that will advance and elevate CU over the next five years and beyond.
THE STRUCTURE

Structure identifies campus-based strategic priorities as well as those across the entire organization where opportunities exist to elevate, align and advance the CU campuses and system as a whole. As part of CU’s strategic planning process seventeen working groups identified best practices and opportunities for the future.

The Road Ahead

The Innovating for the Future strategic plan will:

- Detail actionable, measurable steps that will allow CU to continue to meet its mission and serve its students and the state.
- Provide a roadmap that will guide the university as it emerges from the pandemic and confronts the challenges of the coming five years.
- Complement campus strategic planning efforts and actions.
- Be a bridge that will offer continuity among the current administration, interim administration and next administration.

- $350k/year for 3 years to hire 2 IT professionals to build security & CMMC platform.
- Form a System-wide Research Security working group to address the needs of all campuses.
- Staff will initially reside at CU Boulder (CUB have already invested in 4 staff) and work with each campus to adapt relevant research security & CMMC protocols and processes.

*CMMC (Cybersecurity maturity model certification) required for all future DOD grants.

PILLAR 3
Diversity, Inclusion, Equity & Access

Percent of students, faculty and staff from underrepresented populations (including gender, ethnicity, veterans and disability)

- Diversity of New Students
- Diversity of New Faculty and Staff Hires

Inclusion – Over time, data will be tracked to measure progress based on survey questions found on page 42
The University of Colorado is committed to building, developing and retaining a more diverse and inclusive student, staff and faculty community.

Protected Classes

The University of Colorado recognizes the following protected classes: race, color, national origin, sex, pregnancy, age, disability, creed, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, veteran status, political affiliation, or political philosophy (Regent Law- Article 8, Part A: Nondiscrimination).

Many of these protected classes are defined in federal and state law and require compliance and reporting. Comprehensive data on all CU protected classes is not currently available for students and employees. Annually, CU publishes an expansive Diversity Report with aggregated data on available demographic categories for students, staff and faculty. CU continues to expand our student and employee information systems and data collection capacity to learn more about our community as well as to better capture and share about diversity at CU within our data, while also respecting individuals’ privacy. Currently, however, federal, state, and institutional peers’ data are typically limited to basic demographic areas such as sex and race/ethnicity.

Addressing Underrepresentation in Higher Education and Educational Attainment

Gaps in current educational attainment for different demographic groups exist throughout the academic pipeline and across our state. The Colorado Department of Higher Education’s Master Plan outlines disparities in educational attainment specifically among Hispanic/Latino, African American, and Native American populations in Colorado. Addressing and closing these attainment gaps is a priority for the University of Colorado.

Certain populations continue to be underrepresented in higher education relative to their numbers in the general population. While some populations, including Asian Americans, may not be categorized as underrepresented under the above definition, that does not mean they have not been and are not presently negatively impacted and harmed by discrimination and/or other forms of harassment. Identification of a particular group as underrepresented may vary by discipline, rank, and department as well as when considering the intersections of identities.

CU Strategic Plan Development

In the development of the third pillar of the strategic plan, goals were developed based on available demographic data. Each of the four campuses engaged working groups to determine which groups to include in their campus goal setting based on comparison of the current campus demographics for students, staff and faculty compared to demographic information for the general population in the state of Colorado. As such, there are some variations in how campuses define “underrepresented minorities (URMs)” in their goal setting. These variations reflect our unique and independent campus communities and geographic differences.

We track and monitor other demographic and protected class data that are not reflected in this strategic plan pillar. Some of these data are included in the campus summaries on the following pages. Additional information is available on the CU Data Made Simple website.
Definitions for Data Reporting Categories

The following definitions are based on state, federal and institutional definitions used for data reporting purposes.

Race and Ethnicity
The University of Colorado and all other educational institutions that participate in federal student aid programs are required to submit race and ethnicity data to the U.S. Department of Education’s Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System (IPEDS). We acknowledge some of the terms and definitions used by IPEDS are out of date and some corrections have been made.

Race and ethnicity in IPEDS and the US Census are self-identification data items in which residents choose the race or races with which they most closely identify, and indicate whether or not they are of Hispanic or Latino ethnicity. Race and ethnicity are considered separate and distinct identities, with Hispanic or Latino origin asked as a separate question. Thus, in addition to their race or races, all respondents are categorized by membership in one of two ethnicities, which are “Hispanic or Latino” and “Not Hispanic or Latino.”

Both student and employee data regarding race and ethnicity are self-reported by the individual.

Hispanic or Latino
A person of Cuban, Mexican, Puerto Rican, South or Central American, or other Spanish culture or origin, regardless of race.

American Indian or Alaska Native
A person having origins in any of the original peoples of North and South America (including Central America) who maintains cultural identification through tribal affiliation or community attachment.

Asian or Asian American
A person having origins in any of the original peoples of East Asia, Southeast Asia, or the Indian Subcontinent, including, for example, Cambodia, China, India, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Pakistan, the Philippine Islands, Thailand, and Vietnam.

Black or African American
A person having origins in any of the Black racial groups of Africa.

Native Hawaiian or Pacific Islander
A person having origins in any of the original peoples of Hawaii, Guam, Samoa, or other Pacific Islands.

White
A person having origins in any of the original peoples of Europe, the Middle East, or North Africa.

Two or More Races
A person categorized as Two or More Races selected multiple race categories. Regardless of the selections, if they self-identified with more than one race options, they are categorized here.

The above race and ethnicity definitions are used in official reporting as defined by IPEDS.

Data Aggregations

Students of Color (BIPOC)
This category is an aggregation of multiple race and ethnicity categories, including all options other than White. BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, and People of Color) is another term for Students of Color that include the same aggregation of non-white options.

Underrepresented Minority (URM)
The term Underrepresented Minority, or URM, is a term used often in higher education to identify a group of people by a demographic category, often race/ethnicity, in comparison to peers or geographic area. URM is often defined as a group whose percentage of the population at an institution is lower than their percentage of the population as a comparison group. The comparison group may be a department, school/college, university peer institutions, the state, or even the national population.

In the CU Strategic Plan, definitions of URM vary by campus and goal. For goals referencing URM, a clear definition will accompany each goal.

Sex and Gender

Sex, gender identity, and gender expression are different, but all three are protected classes. Currently, data collection at CU asks about an individual’s sex. Both student and employee data regarding sex are self-reported by the individual. At present, student data systems allow for a non-binary option while employee data systems are limited to binary options (female or male) and leaving the selection blank (reported as unspecified).
Binary Options
Reported as either female or male, with no selection reported as unspecified.

Non-binary
While non-binary is a specific gender identity, it’s also often used as an umbrella term for individuals who don’t identify within the traditional male or female gender binary. Non-binary identities may include, but are not limited to agender, bigender, demigender, genderfluid, pangender, and genderqueer.

Socioeconomic Status (SES)
In addition to household income, those who are first generation college students, Pell Grant recipients, and Veterans have statuses understood to be indicators or proxies for socioeconomic status.

First Generation
A person defined in this report as first generation is one whose parents did not obtain a bachelor’s degree. Nationally, there are varied definitions of first generation that may ask about any member of the family (one or both parents, step-parents, siblings, grandparents) and the level of attainment (any college with no credential, any credential, or specifically an associate’s or bachelor’s degree). This data is self-reported by the individual.

Pell Recipients
A person defined as a Pell Recipient received a Federal Pell Grant during the enrollment term. Federal Pell Grants usually are awarded only to undergraduate students who display exceptional financial need and have not earned a bachelor’s, graduate, or professional degree. A Federal Pell Grant, unlike a loan, does not have to be repaid, except under certain circumstances.

Veteran
A veteran includes people who have served in the U.S. Armed Forces. The veteran category is not limited to those actively receiving veteran benefits.

A protected class veteran is a subcategory of veterans defined in the Vietnam Era Veterans’ Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974 (VEVRAA), and prohibits discrimination against protected veterans. Protected class veterans are limited to disabled veterans, recently separated veterans, active duty wartime or campaign badge veterans, and armed forces service medal veterans.

Military Affiliation
The label Military Affiliation is used in this report to include veterans, defined above, as well as people actively serving in the U.S. Armed Forces and may include dependents of veterans who qualify for benefits. This category is not limited to those actively receiving veteran benefits.

Disability Status
Students - A student defined as a Student with Disabilities is formally registered with the office of disability services (or equivalent office).

Employees – At present, Employees with Disabilities data are not included in this plan, but Employee Services maintains data on disability status in compliance with state and federal laws.

Geography
Residency
Students are grouped by tuition classification, based on their geographic location at the time of their application and specific exemptions defined in law granting resident status. While residency status is the result of several factors, not just geography, students are typically grouped into two categories: Resident and Non-Resident.

In this report, a resident typically means the student lived and graduated high school in Colorado but does include non-Colorado students earning residency through an exemption.

International
Individuals categorized as International are non-residents, living and working in the United States on a student or work visa.

IPEDS requires international students to be reported as nonresidents regardless of any race or ethnicity they may have indicated. Therefore, in CU reporting, international status overrides self-reported race and ethnicity selections meaning that individuals who are reported in the international category are not reported in self-reported categories for race/ethnicity.

(Transformation & Innovation Program)

With the launch of Transformation and Innovations Programs (TIP) in 2019, TIP’s goal has been to help CU efficiently and effectively deliver technology services, and leverage technology’s role in advancing the university’s mission. During the summer of 2021, TIP efforts were reoriented to emphasize campus needs and priorities to best serve students, faculty and staff.

With the decision to consider the components of what had been called the Transformation and Innovation Program (TIP) as individual projects, oversight of key projects has transitioned to CU’s Information Technology (IT) Governance Committee. The committees charge and outcomes are:

- The committee will serve as a key component in addressing technology and infrastructure improvements and opportunities that tie directly to the strategic planning efforts.
- The committee will recommend project priorities and identify areas of shared benefit and risk, annually.
- The committee brings together the Chief Operating Officers (COOs), Chief Financial Officers (CFOs) and IT and security leadership from each campus, the system administration and Advancement to develop and align IT projects and strategies.
- The committee’s campus-centered approach enacts a collaborative, consensus-based approach to deliver technology services that work for all campuses.

A strategic vision is only as good as the people behind it. At the University of Colorado, we were fortunate to have an exceptional team leading the 18-month process that culminated in the document you see before you, Innovating for the Future.

At the direction of the Board of Regents, CU President Emeritus Mark Kennedy initiated the university’s first systemwide strategic planning process in the summer of 2019, soon after assuming the presidency of CU. With a vision of creating a roadmap for the university, Kennedy and the Chancellors tapped experts from within CU’s ranks to lead the charge and offer invaluable input covering every facet of the university and higher education. These key individuals shepherded a collaborative process, which engaged the Board of Regents, faculty, students, staff, chancellors, trustees, shared governance groups and the broader CU community to define the university’s goals.

In addition to Kennedy himself, the following individuals were indispensable to the strategic planning process and deserve special acknowledgment: Vice President Todd Saliman; Leeds School of Business Dean Sharon Matusik; Senior Vice President and Chief of Staff Leonard Dinegar; Former Vice President for Communication Ken McConnellogue; and Assistant Vice President for Strategic Initiatives Angelique Foster.

All those involved in the process deserve our thanks, gratitude and commendation, however. Because of the hard work and persistence – particularly when faced with shifting priorities and the challenges associated with the COVID-19 global pandemic – the strategic plan was completed in the summer of 2021.

By aligning the CU community with a focused set of goals that are vital to the university, the system strategic plan complements the strategic plans of the campuses, each of which have unique competencies, operating environments and goals. Its completion is a significant milestone for CU, and it will serve as an important resource as the university navigates the future.

We are now focused on implementing the CU system plan through its metrics, goals and action steps over the next five years (2021-2026), which will continue to build CU’s brand and set us apart from peer institutions.

Having a strategic plan that identifies our collective priorities is critical, and even more so during times of uncertainty. We look forward to continuing to drive progress toward our goals and invite you to track our successes on the strategic plan website.
