State support represents a small share of total revenue for all Colorado public institutions.

The largest share of CU revenue comes from auxiliary and restricted revenue sources.

Auxiliary revenues include self-supporting enterprises, such as clinical health activities, student housing and bookstores.

State Funding

CU is a public university system and receives state funding supporting instruction including Fee-For-Service and COF (College Opportunity Fund). Other support includes restricted funds for student financial aid and capital construction and maintenance. Data shown here reflect funding related to student instruction.

Since FY 2000-01, state funding per student FTE to CU has declined 37%
