Mountainwest Cybersecurity Consortium Spring Conference [1]

June 1, 2018 by Natalie Barry [2]

The Mountainwest Cybersecurity Consortium Spring Conference was held at the CU Denver Business School and was attended by representatives from several universities and community colleges. Participating schools included Colorado State University, Western State College, New Mexico State University, Regis University, the Colorado School of Mines, and several community colleges in Colorado. There were several presentations given on the current status of cybersecurity curriculum and training. The goal of the group is to determine how to best prepare graduates to enter the workforce and tackle these modern threats after graduation.
