CU will transition to a new ATS on June 1, 2027 [1]

November 23, 2026 by ES and UIS Communications [2]

On June 1, 2027, the University of Colorado will transition to PageUp, a modern applicant tracking system (ATS) that will replace Taleo for CU System, CU Anschutz, CU Denver and UCCS.

CU Boulder is not moving to PageUp, as they do not currently use Taleo and will continue using its existing recruiting system.

Resources for talent acquisition teams will be added as available to the ATS project page [3], including answers to frequently asked questions.

How will this affect CU employees?

Most CU employees will experience little or no direct impact from the change. Employees who regularly participate in recruiting, write position descriptions, or manage hiring processes will receive more extensive information, training and support.

Hiring managers, supervisors, and employees who occasionally participate in searches will receive guidance and step-by-step resources when they need to complete recruiting tasks.

Employees who currently receive Taleo job alerts for CU openings will need to create new job alerts in PageUp after the new system launches. Existing Taleo job alerts will not transfer to PageUp. Past application materials will not transfer to PageUp either. Employees will receive information on how to apply for positions in the new system once available.

When will PageUp go live?

PageUp will go live on June 1, 2027. Additional timeline details will be shared as they are finalized.

When will training be available?

Training and readiness activities are planned for spring 2027. Train-the-trainer activities are expected to start in early spring, followed by end-user training.

Additional training information will be posted on the ATS project page [3] as details are finalized.
