Writing a resume doesn't have to be scary [1]

April 5, 2023 by ES and UIS Communications [2]

Writing a resume can feel overwhelming. Often, it's the first impression you will have at any job, whether you land it or not, and anticipating what the application reviewer would like to see feels like mind-reading.

Designing a thorough resume sounds like a challenge, but in "Writing a Resume" [3]by Stacey Gordon, you will learn how to write a unique and compelling resume that will help you get that job or internship you've been wanting.

This 2 hour and 27-minute course will walk you through most features of a resume step-by-step, but you can also skip to the parts of the course that focus on the aspects you have questions about. And if you've never written a resume before, you can watch the whole thing for a full lesson.

Additionally, you will learn how to customize your resume to make it unique to your personal skillset, as well as how to go about finding contacts to include as your references.

In the competitive world of jobs and internships, learning how to put together a resume that will make you stand out will help keep you top of mind with your potential employers throughout the hiring process.
