Best Practices get Better when Shared [1]

March 29, 2014 by normandy.roden [2]

Improving a business process in your department is a good thing to do. But sharing that improved process through the CU Shared Practices (CUSP) Program makes a good thing even better. It does this in two ways: First - A CUSP submission is a great way to provide improvement to University departments, inspiring them to apply, or expand on, the successful practices you describe. Second - A CUSP submission is a great way to provide recognition to University employees, highlighting their achievements and rewarding them for their innovations. So let's multiply the good at CU. Submit your best practice to CUSP today!
