CPE Wraps Up for FY 2013 ... and Gears Up for 2014 [1]

May 27, 2013 by normandy.roden [2]

Our Continuing Professional Education (CPE) Program recently concluded its final quarter for FY 2013. On April 10, we offered three courses: Emotional Intelligence, Fiscal Roles in Financial Systems and Reporting, and GASB Update. On April 29, we repeated two popular courses from earlier quarters: Understanding Internal Controls, and Cash Controls. In CPA-CPE terms, the value of these courses to their three-dozen participants is conservatively estimated at $13,275. Evaluations continue to be excellent, with 97% of participants strongly agreeing or agreeing that the instructors were effective and the course material was relevant. Among the comments received: "E*veryone at all levels could benefit from this training!" " Very dynamic instructor!" "Great class - thank you!" "Very clear presentation of a complex subject!" "This was the best course on internal controls I have ever taken!"* We've recapped the FY 2013 CPE program in a brochure distributed at last month's CPE Instructor Appreciation Event: www.cu.edu/controller/news/wp-content/uploads/2013/04/CPE-Brochure.pdf [3] Now, some great news for FY 2014: More days! More courses! The Office of University Controller has been approved by NASBA to offer in-person CPE at the next higher program level ... 26-50 courses. We're developing the September 2013 - April 2014 schedule now, and we look forward to publishing it in July.
