Sustainable Purchasing at CU [1]
We are working to further incorporate sustainable best practices into how we support and guide purchases.

This committee brings together sustainability leaders from the CU full system to discuss sustainability collaboration opportunities.

The University of Colorado (CU) and the PSC both recognize their responsibility to minimize negative impacts on human health and the environment while supporting a diverse, equitable, and vibrant community and economy.

Sustainable Procurement Program Vision

The University of Colorado fully integrates sustainability into procurement to be a force for good by supporting a healthy and thriving local economy and community, minimizing negative procurement-related impacts, and developing a campus-wide culture that understands the power of sustainable purchasing. Through total cost of ownership reductions, CU Procurement will help enable broader sustainability initiatives across the CU system.

CU is a national leader in higher education sustainability practices. CU can expand its status as a leader in this field by fully developing its sustainable procurement program and maximizing the amount of good from that spend.

Every day, thousands of CU employees purchase goods and services that have economic, social, and environmental impacts. Through strong leadership and engagement, we are working to incorporate sustainability into procurement practices and embrace the opportunity to improve the health of our communities and the environment.
social, and environmental impacts. Sustainable procurement is the adoption and integration of sustainability principles into procurement processes and decisions, while also ensuring they meet the requirements of the University and its stakeholders.

The ultimate goal we are always striving for as the PSC is that purchased goods and services generate benefits, not only for the organization, but also for the environment, society, and the economy.
