The Timmerhaus Teaching Ambassador award honors the memory of Professor Klaus Timmerhaus, a member of the faculty of Chemical and Biological Engineering at the University of Colorado Boulder from 1953 until his retirement in 1995. Professor Timmerhaus received many honors, including being named to the National Academy of Engineering and being selected to the first group of President’s Teaching Scholars at the University. An active and enthusiastic advocate of teaching, Professor Timmerhaus provided a request to support designated faculty members in promoting the importance of an education, both in the classrooms and from experience. The geographical location for the work of the awardee is in Colorado schools, including grades 7-12, junior colleges, community colleges, and universities.

Deadline for Applications is Monday, Feb. 25, 2019

Mission Statement

The Ambassador, as a faculty member from the University of Colorado, will promote the opportunity for enhanced educational information and opportunities for students at all scholastic levels in the state of Colorado.

Terms and Conditions of the Award

- The recipient holds this honor for two years and will be given a reduced teaching load for one semester each year.
- The recipient will be required to speak at events targeting the voters of Colorado, including state legislators, educators, Regents of the University of Colorado, the media, citizens and students in every quadrant of the state.

- The recipient will present a colloquium on effective teaching methods in all disciplines to faculty and graduate students at each of the four campuses.
- The recipient will receive a cash award of $25,000 per year for up to two years.
- A reduced teaching load will be provided for one semester of each active year (up to $10,500 to the recipient’s department per year).
- An additional amount of up to $13,700 may be requested each year for operating costs including travel, graduate research assistant support, PR materials and events, and other miscellaneous expenses incurred, including website design, blog design, and etc, during the award period.
- The recipient of the award will be actively involved with the grant all academic semesters, including two summer semesters, during the two-year commitment.
- The recipient will submit reports and report quarterly during each of the six semesters to the Timmerhaus Award Committee.
- The awardee will collect data on the number of students, superintendents, teachers, families, and others attending each event to include in a final report of the ambassador activities written in summer 2021. The report will serve as an archive of the growth of the ambassadorship. The president, vice president, deans of schools and colleges, and others will serve as audience for the report.

The Ambassador is to serve as an advocate for education, for scholarly approaches to teaching and learning, and for establishing environments that promote access and success for students from all sectors of our diverse population in Colorado and elsewhere. Drawing from their own particular strengths, backgrounds, and visions, and building on the resources of the university and our campuses, the Ambassador shall, with his or her own emphasis, promote educational opportunities for students ranging from K-12 to higher education, and encourage learning in formal and informal environments. Through presentations and workshops, by fostering key alliances, and in recognizing local contexts and capacities, the Ambassador will seek to engage communities in enhancing educational opportunities for students in regions across the state, and extending to national and international forums as well.

The individual selected will have the following attributes and qualifications:

1. A faculty position at the University of Colorado
2. Demonstrated enthusiasm and vitality for teaching and learning
3. Evidence of continuous growth and leadership in their field of study
4. Successful experience in effectively advising students and guiding student learning
5. Involvement with encouraging intellectual interests in beginning students and/or greater achievement in advanced students
6. Highest level of responsiveness to, and understanding of, a diverse student body
7. Competence, ability, and willingness to represent the enterprise of teaching and learning at the University of Colorado to the greater Colorado community such as legislators, CU Regents, education governing boards, K-12 educators, community colleges, CU Commencements and other public events.
8. Has received a teaching award at the University of Colorado or from a national organization

How to Apply

The applicant will submit a dossier in the form of a single pdf document to Mary Ann Shea,
Director of the President’s Teaching Scholars Program (maryann.shea@colorado.edu [3]) and to PTSP’s Professional Assistant (ftep@colorado.edu [4]). The applicant can compose the dossier in a Word document and then save it as a single PDF.

Dossiers must include, in the following order:

1. A cover letter from a faculty applicant including a signature of approval from the chair of the candidate’s department
2. A statement by the applicant (no more than two pages, 12-pt font, and 1-inch margins) that describes the proposed activities that satisfy the terms and conditions of the award for a period of two years, a summary of his/her teaching and research experience, and that describes the importance and contribution to their respective field of study, including substantive examples
3. A current Curriculum Vitae
4. Evidence of having received a teaching award at the University of Colorado or from a national organization
5. Evidence that the nominee has assisted in the development of teaching in local K-12, community colleges, state colleges, or universities
6. Evidence of public engagement with communities in the state of Colorado (As described in the above list of ‘attributes and qualifications,’ see number 7).
7. A draft MOU signed by the department chair outlining how the faculty member will be released from ordinary duties in order to meet the requirements of the award.

Groups audience:
President’s Teaching Scholars Program
Sub Title:
Call for Applications: Summer 2019 - Summer 2021

Source URL: https://www.cu.edu/ptsp/timmerhaus

Links
[1] https://www.cu.edu/ptsp/timmerhaus
[3] mailto:maryann.shea@colorado.edu
[4] mailto:ftep@colorado.edu