Travel [1]

It is recognized that university-related travel may pose additional responsibilities and increased exposure of risk to participants, as well as to the university. This information is intended to assist the University of Colorado faculty, staff, students, volunteers, and agents acting on behalf of the university to minimize the risk associated with university-related travel.

International Travel [2]

These planning tools apply to university-sponsored international travel. Examples include study abroad programs, faculty-led study tours, faculty research, attendance at conferences and other meetings, recruiting, semester at sea, independent study and internships. LEARN MORE [2]

Off-Campus Activities [3]

Off-campus activities may pose additional exposure of risk to participants and to the university. Here you can find resources to plan an off-campus activity. LEARN MORE [3]
